

Tom O'Keefe
Senior Project Manager and Business Developer
Valleycrest Landscape Development

Tom O'Keefe is a senior project manager and business developer for Valleycrest Landscape Development in Denver, Colorado. He recently re-joined Valleycrest in summer 2007.

Tom, 50, has served on the ACE National Affiliate Council and as a member of the ACE National Board of Directors (as one of two representatives of the N.A.C.) since 2005.

He started the ACE Colorado affiliate with Charlie Thornton, III in 2004 in the Denver market. He served for three years as the chapter's volunteer executive director and as a mentor in two local high schools.

A construction professional with more than 30 years experience, Tom's past achievements include working as a principal and vice president of sales and marketing for Western Environmental and Western Fleet Services in Denver from 2005 - 2007. Tom built numerous notable sports facilities in the Denver market while with Turner Construction from 1999 – 2005, as a general superintendent and project manager. His built achievements include: INVESCO Field at Mile High, home of the NFL's Denver Broncos; Hughes Stadium at Colorado State University; the expansion of Folsom Field at the University of Colorado, Boulder; and Conter Athletic Fields in Commerce City, Colorado.

Tom began his career with Valleycrest Landscape Development in 1982 and served as a general superintendent and superintendent specializing in landscape and infrastructure development from 1982 – 1999.

He studied horticulture at the University of South Florida. He and wife, JuliAnne, and sons Jack and Will reside in Denver, Colorado.